Steel Workers In Pittsburgh Area Remain Hopeful

"Watchful Waiting" Attitude Assumed By Strikers—Eyes On Washington

STILL ANTICIPATE EARLY SETTLEMENT

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 9.—"Watchful waiting" was the attitude today of the nation's 750,000 steel strikers as the walkout swung into its twelfth day.

Interest continued to center on developments in Washington, where late reports indicated that industry and labor were "not far apart" in their efforts to reach an agreement.

President Truman's decision to cancel his Florida vacation came as a depressing surprise to those who believed a settlement was imminent. But most people in the steel areas, who ardently hope for an early settlement, still cling to the belief that a way soon will be found to bring both sides together.

The "mass picketing" issue between the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation and the CIO-United Steel Workers' Union, meanwhile, was amicably settled in Pittsburgh.

Attorneys for both sides reached a mutual agreement whereby it was decided that 1,100 non-union employees of J and L would be allowed access to the company's Pittsburgh works.

The agreement came at the end of the second day of hearing before Common Pleas Court Judge Frank H. Patterson on a petition by the corporation which alleged that "mass picketing" was causing "irreparable damage" at its plant. Judge Patterson, before the agreement was reached, indicated that he, like so many others, thought an early settlement of the strike was approaching. He expressed the belief that continuance of the hearing might prove "futile."

SEVEN DOES ARE KILLED BY TRAIN

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Feb. 9.—(INS)—Seven does were killed by a Pennsylvania railroad freight train today when they became frightened and plunged onto the tracks near Julian Centre. County Game Protector Thomas Mosier said eight animals dashed down the mountain, but one made no attempt to cross the tracks. The train was undamaged.

PA NEWS OBSERVES

Scarcely a night now passes unless one or two meter caps are broken according to police reports. Three were found broken last night according to police headquarters. It is likely that some extraordinary efforts may be required to stop the vandalism.

Just an idle thought, but why do the red traffic lights seem to linger longer than the green ones?

PA News observed some shivering pedestrians this morning casting glances at a parked auto with Florida license plates.

PA News discovered a new way to spell the word clearance on his rounds Friday afternoon. A local store displayed a large sign carrying the words, "Clearance Sale."

Next Tuesday is Lincoln's birthday, and next Thursday is Valentine's day.

Reminder of olden days was noted here this morning. A horse, drawing a wagon, went along the street and it had a covering over it to protect it from the rain. Considerate driver was apparently on the wagon.

For some reason or other, it seems to PA News that fewer people carry umbrellas when it rains in winter than they do during a summer rain. It may be that they think their clothes can take it, or perhaps it's all in getting used to bad weather.

Plans For Hanging Gen. Yamashita Are Cloaked In Secrecy

By PAT ROBINSON
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

MANILA, Feb. 9.—Preparations for the execution of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita for war crimes today were cloaked in absolute secrecy.

Sources at headquarters of army forces of the western Pacific said that all newsmen, including photographers, would be barred from witnessing the hanging of the former Japanese Philippine commander.

Time-Place Secret
The hanging will be conducted under the direction of Lt. Gen. W. D. Styer, western Pacific commander, at an unannounced time and date.

General Styer was named by General MacArthur to arrange for the execution in the supreme allied commander's announcement Thursday.

Governor Will Be Candidate For U.S. Senator

HARRISBURG, Feb. 9.—(INS)—Gov. Edward Martin looked down the campaign trail today and expressed confidence that he would capture the Republican nomination for the U. S. senate in the May 21 primary election.

He announced his candidacy for the $100,000 a year post in a 45-word statement which indicated he had put aside a personal desire to retire to private life when he leaves the executive mansion in January, 1947.

"After careful and deliberate consideration," he announced at the state capitol, "I have decided to be a candidate for the United States senate."

"This is a critical period in our nation's history," he said. "If the citizens of Pennsylvania feel that I can be of service, I am willing to accept the responsibility."

At a news conference where he disclosed his candidacy, Governor Martin said there would be no hurry to secure signatures on his nominating petitions. Today is the first day that signatures may be obtained legally.

Tugboat Workers In New York Vote Down Proposal To Return To Work

WORKERS ARE NOW BEING RECRUITED

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—(INS)—The federal government today began recruiting additional tugboat workers as New York returned to a wartime footing because of a crippling strike of AFL harbor workers.

At the office of Lawrence C. Turner, federal administrator under the president's order seizing the tugboats, a spokesman announced that the qualifications of several applicants for harbor jobs are being checked. The spokesman said:

"We have more than 40 tugs in operation now and hope to have many more before the day is over. We are receiving applications for jobs, but it is necessary to check the qualifications of each applicant. We hope that many of the striking union men will come back under government operation."

Vote Down Proposal
The 3,500 strikers yesterday voted down a proposal to return to work which was approximately the same as the plan they rejected last week before they struck.

Turner's efforts to get the harbor boats operating were intensified by a demand from Mayor William O'Dwyer to "man every tugboat in New York harbor, regardless of consequences."

The mayor said action was necessary in the interest of health and safety. Lack of fuel represented the most vital point of the crisis. Coal, gasoline and fuel oil is moving into New York from New Jersey only in dribbles because of lack of tugs.

MRS. ROOSEVELT ROYALTY GUEST

LONDON, Feb. 9.—(INS)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, former "first lady" of the United States and present member of the American delegation to the U. N. O., was a luncheon guest today of the British royal family.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth entertained Mrs. Roosevelt at Buckingham Palace.

day of his approval of the death sentence.

A brief halt in preparations was called the following day when the secretary of war disclosed that Yamashita's attorneys had asked President Truman to consider a plea for clemency.

President Declines

The president washed his hands of the affair, however, leaving the army to carry out the sentence of the American military tribunal which returned a guilty verdict against Yamashita last December 7.

The secrecy of preparations was laid to the army's desire to prevent Yamashita from making any dramatic gestures on the gallows. MacArthur ordered the Japanese general stripped of all military insignia before dying for crimes which were termed "revolting."

Epworth Church Plans Campaign To Raise $50,000

Campaign for $50,000 to amortize the indebtedness of Epworth Methodist church will be launched on Wednesday, February 13, at a dinner meeting in the church. Bishop James H. Straublin of Pittsburgh will be the speaker and Dr. H. A. McCurdy, district superintendent of Grove City, will be present to give the invocation.

Debt Greatly Reduced

Epworth church was dedicated in July 1931 with an indebtedness of $94,000. The building is estimated to be worth a quarter of a million dollars and the congregation has reduced the bonded indebtedness to $40,000. Other items of indebtedness, plus the interest for the period of the campaign, prompted the choice of the figure of $50,000 for which the congregation will strive.

The special committee for the campaign has already received assurance of support from many sources.

To Continue Support

The Epworth Guild, an organization of the women of the church, has pledged their continued efforts for the period of the campaign. Already this group has given large support and is responsible for much of the reduction already accomplished.

The campaign has been planned to close with the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the founding of the church, which will take place in June of 1949. The committee for the campaign consists of N. E. Clark, chairman; Mrs. J. F. Bentz, Newell A. Kelly, George D. Reid and Russell P. Rhodes.

Huge Relief Supplies Are Sent Abroad

Commerce Department Reveals Huge Contribution Of U. S. To World Relief

BIGGEST PART OF SUPPLIES IS FOOD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(INS)—The commerce department revealed today that relief supplies shipped abroad or committed by the U. S. government as of December 31, 1945, were valued at approximately four billion dollars.

The department said that about 60 per cent of all relief supplies consisted of foodstuffs, particularly wheat and flour, with shipments of clothing and footwear ranking second and fuel, especially coal, third.

The report said: "When the UNRRA program attains full speed, there will be marked increases in shipments of agricultural and industrial supplies, equipment and raw materials in relation to the pure relief supplies, but foodstuffs and clothing will probably continue to be the major items shipped."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(INS)—Abe Fortas, former interior under-secretary, today was reported ready to back up the testimony of his former chief, Secretary Ickes, against Edwin A. Pauley's nomination for assistant navy secretary.

At the same time the full Senate prepared to act on President Truman's nomination of George E. Allen, White House adviser, for a Reconstruction Finance Corporation directorship.

Senator Taft (R) Ohio, said he would oppose confirmation. But Allen was expected to have the same success before the full Senate as he had in the Banking committee, which endorsed him by a 14 to 5 vote.

Fortas—now a Washington law partner of Thurman Arnold—meanwhile said he is ready to tell his story, but has not been called upon to appear. He said:

"I'm in town. If anybody wants to hear my story, I'm ready to tell it."

Fortas added that he thought it would be improper for him to disclose publicly what he would tell the committee if he were called.

This is the time for signatures for men who wish to serve, whose purposes are lofty ones, from duty never swerve. But first they ask for folks like you to sign their proper name, so they can file for this or that. It is the well-known game. They want to be a governor or something else they see, and so we sign their little sheet. The weather's forty-three.

GOVERNMENT PLANS FOR HOUSE BUILDING PROGRAM REVEALED

year, the program envisages 300,000 conventional homes and 600,000 permanent prefabricated houses.
Mr. Truman announced that the plan was drafted by Wilson Wyatt, the new housing administrator, after five weeks consultation with government, business, labor and veterans representatives.
Government subsidies and other federal payments are called for to bring about a vast increase in the output of building materials for the new homes.
To Set Price Ceilings
The program also calls for labor forces working on residential construction to be greatly increased and wages boosted where necessary. Prices ceilings would be set on building lots and all types of houses, new and old.
Wyatt's program would give preference to veterans in rental and purchase of the new homes constructed, "with appropriate preference for non-veteran hardship cases."
The plan calls upon the RFC "to play a major role in financing the program," and for immediate authorization from Congress to provide 600 million dollars for premium payments. It also asks 250 million for temporary re-use war housing and early adoption of the Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill.

Hawaiian-Born Bride Likes New Home Here In New Castle

"I think the climate here is wonderful," exclaimed Mrs. Katherine Marcella, young Hawaiian-born wife of Joseph Marcella of 512 Martin street.
Realizing that her statement was somewhat of a surprise, she repeated, "Yes, really I do. Everyone had been telling me how bad it would be, so I was prepared for the worst and the worst didn't come."
Mrs. Marcella, with her two children, arrived in New Castle this week after an eleven-day trip from her home in Hawaii. The children, a boy who is almost three and a girl who is just a year, are taking things very much for granted. Their mother, however, is exuberant about the people, the tall Chicago buildings, and the country around here, as well as the climate.
This trip to the United States, her first visit to the "mainland," is also Mrs. Marcella's first reunion with her husband for almost a year and a half. Now discharged, Mr. Marcella is working in New Castle, and the couple expect to make their home here.
And incidentally, don't tell the California Chamber of Commerce, but Mrs. Marcella doesn't like California weather half as well as she likes ours.

Pose Opposition To Federal Control Of Atomic Research

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(INS)—The National Association of Manufacturers vigorously opposed any program for government control of the production, ownership and use of materials developing atomic energy.
The association's position was outlined to congress by George E. Folk, patent adviser to the NAM, who vigorously opposed the McMahon and other pending atomic energy control bills, in calling for maintenance of free enterprise in nuclear energy development.
Folk told a special committee headed by Sen. McMahon (D-Conn.), that the proposed atomic energy commission should be given only such authority as to make and become conducive to public safety and public health with the least possible government interference.
The witness said government regulation and policing of production and use of materials for atomic materials for atomic energy is necessary and desirable to protect national security and insure the broadest possible development in that field.

Paris Has Atom Panic

It is not surprising that Parisian radio listeners were thrown into a panic by a program which came over their loudspeakers the other night. What they heard was the fearful "news" that atom bomb experiments in the Pacific had gotten out of control and had started a chain reaction which was in process of blowing the earth to bits.

If they had listened carefully, to be sure, they would have found that this was only another radio playlet. But careful, unemotional listening is something that a broadcaster has no right to expect of his audience.

American radio men made this discovery nearly nine years ago when a vivid fictional account of an invasion of New Jersey by men from Mars threw a whole countryside into an unreasonable panic. The Parisian radio audience had a better excuse for its credulity than the New Jersey listeners. The possibility of a Martian invasion is, after all, a rather remote affair, despite the fantasies of the comic strips.

But the possibility of an atomic reaction with dire effects has been dinned into the ears of people for months. The most respected scientists in the world have expatiated in the most lurid terms on the horrors of atomic bombing. If there is not much real likelihood that their experiments will start a chain reaction which will blow up the world, they have certainly not ruled out the possibility of greater and more terrible explosions.

In this instance the French broadcasters were playing with a particularly dangerous fire and it is not surprising that they burned their fingers. Radio men have a very real responsibility not to gamble on programs which can, in a literal sense, scare people out of their wits.

Plea For Renaissance

The American people have grown so accustomed to depending on Broadway, Hollywood and "soap operas" to set the standards of their artistic taste that community life has practically disappeared in this country. Dr. Lewis Webster Jones, president of Bennington college, Bennington, Vermont, recently told the National Recreation Congress at Atlantic City.

Dr. Jones said he did not wish to attack commercialized amusements, but asked for a rebirth of artistic and cultural activities in America through cultural decentralization and a return to the local community. He said he felt it was time to recognize the basic conception of the importance of creative activity in education.

True artists or the producers who bring their work before the public need not be concerned lest the plans of Dr. Jones should be carried out. His proposals would serve to find and develop artistic talent in those possessing it and foster an appreciation of art in those who lacked both it and talent as well.

In a country so tremendous in size and population as America, a country of such diverse backgrounds, traditions and customs, there must be lying about undeveloped a great deal of artistic talent. And it is also true that there is a lack of appreciation of the arts among a great number.

So it might be well for those interested to ponder a bit over the suggestions of Dr. Jones. America is teeming with energy and everyone possessing talent ought to have some means of developing it. Contests might offer a good beginning if some townsman in each locality were willing to offer a prize worth shooting at. These could be developed into inter-community projects and contests.

Perhaps the easiest way to start is to enlist children in the work. That method results in arousing the interest of parents and older brothers and sisters. If these projects were undertaken universally and enthusiastically, America could do a great deal not only to develop the artistic talent of its people, but to instill a love of beauty which would reveal itself later in all realms of rural and urban life.

Demand for beauty can reward art and industry, which in many instances are divorced today. If Dr. Jones' plans were carried out, America the Beautiful might really become beautiful.

As Good As His Word

When General MacArthur announced last September 17 that he expected to reduce the occupation forces in Japan to 200,000 men within six months, some persons thought that he was dangerously over-confident and over-optimistic. The surrender in Tokyo Bay had taken place only a month before and the job of disarming the defeated Japanese had hardly begun.

Both Washington and the War department were caught entirely by surprise, and there was much official sniping at MacArthur as a result of his statement.

But the general in this case, as in so many others during the Pacific campaign, has proved as good as his word. His promise has been kept with weeks to spare. Although the six months he allotted will not be up until March 17, the number of American officers and enlisted men in Japan totals only 203,817, including Air Force personnel, and the figure will be down to 200,000 before many days have passed.

The truth seems to be that General MacArthur had a much keener understanding both of the Japanese and of the occupation job than all the rest of the experts put together. Looking back over the past five months, one can better appreciate how skillfully the occupation was planned and executed. General MacArthur took few if any unnecessary chances. But he applied to the hilt as much pressure as he could without stirring up rebellion against the occupation forces and, in the end, he has brought the Japanese empire and government to heel far sooner than some persons had dared to hope.

It has been a magnificent achievement. And not the least of its fruits is that it is being handled with such economy of manpower that General MacArthur has been able to send home 324,829 Pacific veterans from his occupation forces since the surrender took place.

WASHINGTON CALLING

Democratic Split Expected To Widen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The split within the Democratic party will be widened by President Truman's first stand for the confirmation of Edwin W. Pauley as undersecretary of the Navy. It is not so much the issue itself, which is not so clearly drawn. It is the personalities that range themselves on either side of the dispute.

First of all, there is Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior for 12 years under Roosevelt and for nearly a year under Truman. The indomitable Ickes has taken an unequivocal stand against Pauley. In some respects, this comes down to a question of his veracity or Pauley's. Their testimony is flatly contradictory. It is the word of a cabinet member of long standing against the word of the oil man who wants to be in the cabinet.

Now the President has thrown his weight on Pauley's side. He suggested that, like other human beings, Ickes could be mistaken.

Embarrasses Ickes. This puts Ickes in an embarrassing position. It is hard to see how he can stay on in the Truman cabinet. The picture of Ickes and Pauley sitting in the same cabinet meeting is an impossible one, and Pauley has let it be known that the undersecretaryship is merely a stepping stone to the secretaryship.

The only other New Deal survivor in the Truman cabinet is Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace. Wallace while he was not called upon to testify because he had no connection with Pauley, is also known to disapprove of the appointment.

These two men, Wallace and Ickes, represent the labor and left-wing support which, at least three out of four times, helped to put Roosevelt in the White House. If they go, then this important element of Democratic strength will be without representation in the cabinet.

The Political Action Committee, in a letter to the President, strongly urged him to withdraw Pauley's name. The farmers union denounced the appointment. Liberals and progressives had led the fight against Pauley, conspicuously in the Senate Naval Affairs committee, where the burden of the attack has been carried by Senator Tobey of New Hampshire with assistance from Senator Morse of Oregon.

Confirmation uncertain. Whether Pauley will be confirmed by the Senate is still a question. The probability is that he will. Chairman Robert Hannegan of the Democratic National committee and his aides are putting all possible pressure on Democratic senators.

Ickes has few personal friends in the Senate. Pauley on the other hand, made a great many close friendships during the years he was connected with the Democratic party as secretary and later as treasurer. His personality—his easy affability and good humor—appeals to fellow politicians. Moreover, he was a potent money-raiser at a time when the party was in dire need.

It is, however, by no means certain that his appointment will be approved. Much depends on whether the Republicans vote as a party against confirming him. Certain Democratic senators are keeping very quiet about their views on the matter. They are hoping the nomination will be withdrawn, so that they will not have to stand up and be counted. But if it does come to a vote, they will vote against confirmation. One of them, speaking off the record, put it this way: "The President is treating this like a brother Elk. If you happen to be President, you can't be a brother Elk."

Quite apart from Pauley's oil connections, the most serious question in the minds of these doubters is the veracity of the man who has been named to so high an office. Both Ickes and Pauley testified under oath.

Truth-telling would seem to be rudimentary. Ickes produced a careful memorandum setting out in detail the conversation in which Pauley is alleged to have said he could collect $300,000 for the party if the Tidelands oil suit was called off.

We are all entitled to know if it can be determined, who was telling the truth. Further hearings might serve that purpose. Let's find out all there is to be known about this controversial appointment.

How many times have you had the urge to take a chance in traffic? Such as passing a slower moving vehicle on a curve or while approaching the crest of a grade, or stepping up your speed to 60 when you thought no police cars were in the vicinity. If you are one who takes chances remember that in automobile accidents where the speed is under 40 miles an hour, there's only 1 chance in 44 that someone will be killed—over 40 the odds are 1 chance in 19.

Radical Propaganda Seems More Effective

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The violent denunciation by the CIO head, Mr. Philip Murray, of the pending labor bill plus the play which his impurpled adjectives regularly get in the press and over the radio, draws attention once more to the superiority which radical propaganda has achieved over conservative propaganda. Any study of the press and radio output in the period since the General Motors strike began will confirm this statement.

It is a new development in this country, although the Communists and Socialists have been working toward it for 25 years. Efforts to offset this by conservative propaganda have failed. The direct radical propaganda from organizations avowedly radical is not only greater than conservative can supply, but indirect stuff that comes from supposedly impartial sources, such as newspaper writers, radio commentators, magazine articles, authors and motion picture producers, is of far greater volume. In addition, this free access to the channels of communication by the radical propaganda has other advantages. First, it is direct.

Speaking of the sinus and the red eyes and the headache that accompany it, it does seem that the area national scientific might had invented the atomic bomb ought to think up some way to cure the common cold.

Good News for Vets. Good News—The new medical program of the Veterans' administration under Gen. Omar Bradley makes certain that the disabled veteran of World War II get good care.

Hitherto the appropriation for physicians was so small that no good physician could afford to even go to have on such an annual wage. Now, most of the V. A. medical positions will offer twice the salary they formerly did. They are tempting ambitious young men and also experienced older men who wish to let down slightly from the grind of independent practice.

Of strikes, strikers and the government. Secretary of Labor Schweikert has bright red hair, only lately turned auburn. Here's a temperamental (Continued on Next Page)

SECOND, radical propaganda is more effective because it appeals to the unsuccessful and incompetent against the successful and competent, who are in the minority. No counterpropaganda with equal power has been devised by the conservatives. A third advantage is that the radicals are far more proficient as spokesmen. A fourth is that while radical propaganda has had great success in the Federal Treasury, the CIO and the PAC, and from certain rich organizations and individuals, it always identifies itself with the masses, while the conservatives are regarded by the public as the "special privilege" class. In addition, the radical cause is supported by the publicity of many government agencies and not infrequently by paragraphs prepared by radical writers in speeches by the President and other officials. Finally, it is a provable fact that conservative propaganda has only a small part of the voluntary support given radical propaganda by columnists, radio broadcasters and commentators generally. However, the fact is that while a majority of the whole-writing groups, as well as radio news analysts, actors and kindred folk lean toward the radical side, the big thing that gives the radicals so wide a market for their stuff is the entrenchment of a radical government in Washington.

THIS they have had since 1933 and against it conservative propaganda cannot compete. Especially, the government influence is felt on the radio. "The New Deal," says a student of this situation, "found it easier to control radio than the newspapers because of the club in the hands of the Federal Communications Commission, which probably has more radicals in proportion to desk space than any other governmental unit. The big radio chains found it expedient to ease the way for expression of 'liberal' opinion while making things difficult for opponents of the opposite view. In doing this, many radio people performed a consensual chore. These observations may be equally applied to stage and screen. Political sympathy is always present and those who determine policy feel that they can now get away with left-wing propaganda because the government supports it."

MUCH MORE could be said to sustain the contention that today the radical propaganda is vastly better than the conservative. So clear is this that intelligent conservatives assert that propaganda is now secondary and their real problem is to find some other way to run a conservative government in power. The first essential for this, obviously, is the existence of a conservative party. The Democrats, being the radical or liberal party, it is contended that as a matter of high principle the Republicans should make theirs the avowed conservative party. Ours is a two-party system. It cannot function unless the party out of power serves as a check and balance to the party in power.

"IT IS," writes one of the leading Republicans in the country, "the duty of the party out of power to provide a political home and leadership for these citizens who want a change in the character and direction of the government. In this duty the Republican party has three times failed the country. It must fail no longer. This is not an appeal for a return to any good old days. There never were any 'good old days.' The same basic problems will confront our country, regardless of whether the government is radical or conservative. The Republican party should make clear its understanding of this fact. But it also should make clear that though the problems will be the same, the approach will be profoundly different and better—a difference not confined solely to more efficient administration but springing from a deep-seated philosophy directly opposed to personal government, group favoritism, deficit financing and collection of taxes. There seems much sense in the argument."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The reason Secretary of State Jimmy Byrnes caught the cold that almost prevented him from pushing off for London and the UNO is because President Truman asked him to take a little walk down the deck of the presidential yacht on that recent bleak week-end on the Potomac.

Mr. Truman was stepping about without an overcoat. So, Byrnes prang outside. Also—without an overcoat. Result: Byrnes got the sniffles. Looks like Harry S. will have to bundle up more. LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

As I have told you several times before, one of the things I like about the dear ladies is that they do so many things that are entirely unpredictable and that the longer you know them the less you know about them.

For instance, I just saw an advertisement in one of the New York newspapers announcing a "pretty little metal case colored to look like gleaming gold."

And what do you think the case is for? "Convenient new way to carry your vitamins, aspirins or what have you," says the ad. "So easy to manipulate and a charming accessory for your purse."

There was a picture, too. The thing looks just like a ball. You press a button and half of the ball opens up and there are your pills, milady.

The other evening my wife dropped her purse. It was one of those things that are big enough to serve as an overnight bag—or even as a two-night bag.

I am not going to tell you all the things that dropped out. But I was on my knees for at least ten minutes, picking up the fifty or more articles that had fallen out. I had to crawl under the bed and fish under the dresser and a couple of chairs, and finally I had rescued everything, everything, that is, except one little fifty-cent pocket pencil and that is still missing.

Naturally I made some sarcastic remarks about all the junk women carry in their purses, and my wife, being the wiser of the two, didn't say anything.

But this morning she got even with me.

I asked her to send one of my suits to the tailor to be pressed, and, while she was watching me, I emptied my pockets.

Five packages of matches, a pack of cigarettes, a nail-file, a comb, two pencils, a fountain pen, a keyring full of keys (half of them for long-forgotten doors), a handkerchief, fifty cents in pennies, nickels and dimes, a few bills, three envelopes, some old theatre ticket stubs, a button, a piece of cube sugar and a notebook.

The wife just smiled and said in her sweetest tones:

"I'm not mistaken, you said something the other day about all the junk women carry around."

"It seems to me that you men, instead of a purse, really ought to carry a small trunk."

Sometimes I wonder whether there is really so much difference between men and women. We all carry a lot of useless junk in our purses and pockets as well as in our heads.

It may be a good idea to do a little housecleaning in all of them. Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The World and the Mud Puddles

A GREAT SYSTEM

The question of whether it is wise to return to state administration of the employment service presents again a constitutional question.

The Constitution of the United States is a curious document. It established a system whereby the various States which composed the Union were given an odd sovereignty. The Constitution reserved for these sovereign States certain powers; in fact, it reserved all sovereign powers except those which they, the sovereign states, by this Constitution, gave to the Union.

States shall have the power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense.

"To borrow money on the credit of the United States."

"To regulate commerce with foreign nations, among the several States."

"To coin money and regulate the value thereof."

"To establish Post Offices."

"To promote the progress of Science and useful arts by securing for limited times to Authors and inventors the exclusive rights to their respective writings and discoveries."

"To define and punish Piracies and Felonies committed on the high seas."

Gives Doug Fairbanks Credit For His Part In Real War Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Nobody gets sicker at his stomach than you truly at all the punks who capitalized so heavily on the publicity value of their war records—when, quite often, they did nothing whatever outstanding after they answered those fateful "greetings" from their friends and neighbors.

A lot of them came from Hollywood—and from plenty of other places, for that matter. But there were exceptions.

A couple of days ago, you may have missed a comparatively minor item in the daily papers, datelined Los Angeles. It said: "Commander Douglas Fairbanks Jr., after five years of naval service, during which he was awarded twelve ribbons and seven battle stars, this week was released from active duty."

Before The Draft
Well, if there are no objections, I would like to write a little piece about Doug—a piece I tried to write two years ago, but he would not let me.

"Five years," the story said. That, you will recall, was some spell before the draft, before Pearl Harbor, before the mass enlistments, even before most of us thought it was our war.

Young Doug Fairbanks thought it was our war. But he didn't make speeches about it or write about it. He simply signed up and went to sea. And since he went long before our war started, he went without fanfare or flashbulbs, with about as small a press notice as he got when he came home, long after it was over.

I'm sure he liked the inconspicuousness of that return notice, too. Yet, in those five years, he rode everything from battleships to PT-boats, and he rode them through freezing, rough, horribly-bombed, torpedoed and mine-struck waters.

Did Heroic Service
For five years the role he played was just as quietly heroic, and sometimes as spectacular, as any

he or his old man ever played on the silver screen—but because a lot of guys named Joe were playing similar roles, Doug didn't want any publicity.

He could have had it. Ask the British fleet about him. Ask the Allied Commandos. Ask our Merchant Marine. Or, of course, ask our Navy.

In those early days, Doug was making the Murmansk run when less than half the convoys were getting through the original "bomb alley" and "torpedo junction." He served on destroyers and minesweepers when the Luftwaffe ruled the North Sea skies alone. He made the murderous Malta run.

Then the British grabbed him ashore to train Mountbatten's Commandos—the same Commandos he later led into action in both the Mediterranean and European theaters. Sounds simple? Try it some time.

Had Much Action
At Salerno, Doug's boys were all over the place. The bay of Naples was their backyard while the Germans still held it. Later he led a gang in to capture Capri—with the bay still thickly mined—to eliminate that outpost and let our supply boats in.

He was back in the naval spearhead business at Anzio, and do you remember the Isle of Elba? It was a small operation, but the most intensely bloody of all the Mediterranean landings. And Doug was in the big middle again.

Remember southern France? Doug was with a "fake invasion" outfit then—PT-boats equipped with phonograph recordings and loud speakers simulating artillery barrages and troop landing sounds. Scuttling back and forth, they got shot at plenty, but the Germans were so rattled we landed with almost no casualties.

There's plenty more behind those twelve ribbons and seven battle stars, but that gives a rough idea. Yet, when I ran into Doug in Naples, and asked to write his story, he said no.

Thinking he was coy and playing the modest hero's role, I went to the Navy public relations officer and asked for the dope—only to be told Doug really didn't want it written. Irritably, I went back to him.

"Look," he said quietly, "sure I've done a good job. But so have a few thousand other guys who didn't happen to be well-known beforehand. You go write about them. I didn't get into this for publicity—and I don't want to be classed with those who did."

The last of that little story the other day said that Fairbanks intends to form his own company to make moving pictures. Even if they think, I'll still go see them all!

mental warning to labor, which thinks it has the secretary well in hand.

During the telephone strike the president of a telephone union who was in Washington for a conference came hesitantly into the office of the secretary of labor and said:

"I've—er—got a—er—little favor to ask you, Mr. Secretary, please do me the kindness of letting me use your phone. I must get a call through to New York."

Scripture In Schools
I have letter from "Well Wisher," begging for a word on the subject of "having the Scriptures read every school day as part of the school program in all parts of the country."

The United States department of education in the capital is being petitioned.

Another supplicant, "Patriotic Mother," wishes me to request that "playing of The Star Spangled Banner" at the beginning or end of each moving picture, theatrical performance or public entertainment be continued.

Both ideas sound excellent. I hereby give them my blessing.

General Eisenhower is not only not pleased with Capt. Harry C. Butcher's diary, "My Three Years With Eisenhower," now running serially, he is definitely annoyed. That bit Captain Butcher did about Winston Churchill's table manners greatly disturbs the general of all the United States armies. There are other bits.

Look To Washington
A certain senator, an off-the-record type, told me as an example of that passing-the-buck-to-Washington habit, that a delegation from his home had called on him to ask his help in a needed state reform.

"But I'm a long way from the matter you are discussing," said the senator. "Have you brought it to the attention of your mayor? No? Well, how about the governor? Did you tell your troubles to him? You didn't, eh?"

Oh, yes, said the senator, the delegation as one man "We look to Washington to do everything for us. Besides, we like the trip here. And we've got to have an excuse to come, haven't we? Ha! Ha! Ha! Now in the days when Mr. Roosevelt was in the White House we could always count on Washington to keep things moving."

Six trucks and seven buses were put in operation in an effort to relieve the transportation shortage caused by the four-day-old walkout and a concurrent strike of 17 Yellow Cab company drivers.

Secretary Sees Sugar Price Rise

Must Continue Payment Of Government Subsidies, Agriculture Head Declares

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(INS)—A "substantial" rise in the price of sugar was predicted Friday by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson unless congress authorizes the continued payment of subsidies this year.

Anderson wrote Rep. McGregor (R) Ohio:

"In order to assure the prompt availability of this year's sugar production it will be necessary to increase the price of sugar substantially or to obtain legislative authorization to incur losses on the 1946 crop operations."

Legislation is now pending in the house, introduced by Rep. Spence (D) Ky., authorizing the agriculture department to continue paying sugar growers in Hawaii and Puerto Rico subsidies this year.

As for Cuban sugar, Anderson informed McGregor that negotiations are underway to purchase the 1946 Cuban sugar crop for a price of 3.675 cents per pound, an increase of .375 cents per pound over the price paid for the 1945 crop.

Anderson said that ceiling prices of raw and refined sugar will be increased "in the near future" by an amount "which will permit the importation and sale of the 1946 crop Cuban sugar by Commodity Credit Corporation without loss."

There's a Difference in Garage Services

It takes more than just a lot of tools and gadgets, more than just a building and grease pits and racks. More than just neon signs and flashy slogans.

It takes the know how in men who are trained for the job. It takes honest craftsmanship and the will to serve. All of these are a part of our organization.

We have the tools, we have the equipment, we have the facilities, but best of all we have the expert mechanics who know what they are doing.

WANTED! Firebrands For God!

(By Bishop M. L. Dohner of Brethren in Christ Church)

The need of our pulpits today is ministers filled with the Holy Ghost and fire. "There cometh one after me, who shall baptize you with the HOLY GHOST and FIRE. Luke 3:16. The baptism of fire purges away the dross of the soul and purifies from the last and least remains of inbred SIN. The WARMTH of FIRE will bring heat (life) to the cold, dead world and carnal church. The holy need the same definite experience of the baptism of the Holy Ghost and fire, without it there is a great lack. We cannot be a FLAMING FIRE for GOD without the FIRE in our own souls. Psalms 104:4; Hebrews 1:7. HAVE YOU GOT IT?"

(We specialize in teaching holiness of heart and life.)

"To raise and support Armies."

"To provide and maintain a Navy."

"To provide for calling forth the Militia to execute the laws of the nation."

"To provide for organizing, arming and disciplining the Militia."

"To raise and support Armies but no appropriation of money to that use shall be for a longer term than two years."

That great document goes on to prohibit the levy of any tax on articles exported from any State, and no preference shall be given by any regulation of Commerce or revenue to the Ports of one State over another, and further provides that no State shall, without the consent of Congress, lay any imposts or duties on Imports and Exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection laws.

There is no authority given Congress to pass any laws regulating a State Employment Service.

No figure how many cases there have been and there are still where the States have evaded those prohibitions and how many have been evaded by Congress. It is conceded that it is a difficult matter to divide sovereignties and yet that is what the Constitution of this country attempts to do. It has worked very well when the members of the Supreme Court of the United States have religiously followed the precedents established by their predecessors.

The great trans-continental railroad systems were unthinkable of when the Constitution was adopted, and no imagination, possessed by the framers of the Constitution could foresee the great highways that have spanned the country, touching every one of the States. The forefathers could not imagine the nation or the states even attempting to control employment or to provide an income for the incompetents, the doleless and the lazy.

Most of the New Deal legislation has been undertaken under the guise of its being a part for providing for the general welfare and this administration of the employment service is another instance of how the central Union works.

Cupid's Valentine Day Aids More Plentiful

Candy dealers may still be complaining that they can't get all the Valentine's Day candy they want, but so far St. Valentine's little stooge Cupid has been pretty well satisfied with what his clientele has been purchasing.

Red heart boxes, although the supply is running low, are adding the customary gay and sentimental note and this year they are filled with a greater variety of candies than the boxes of 1945 were. You can have gum drops—if you get there before they're all gone—or peppermint creams and maple creams—while they last—and lots and lots of chocolates. You can have cream-coated pecan clusters or Jordan almonds, if you really insist on variety, or for a package that's really exotic, there is the Cupid super-special heart-shaped box of rich, syrupy dried fruits. Many young suitors are going in for flowers—they usually do—but besides that, the florists report that many persons are sending little floral remembrances just as a friendship token. They send little green plants, touched up with a bit of red, or they send cut flowers in bright red bowls, or they choose blooming plants which have flowers of clear, warm shades of pink and red.

The fact that the "boys are home again" has a decided influence on all this Valentine buying. In fact, a few places are even looking forward to February 15—when Cupid will go back to more quiet ways of stirring up trouble.

A trouble-shooter making an emergency opening of the post-office vault, set off a tear-gas bomb inside. The fumes leaked out of the vault and did the rest.

Civil Service Is Shifting From War To Peace Basis

Disabled Veterans To Have First Chance At Civil Service Appointments

President Truman has signed an executive order outlining the program to be followed by the federal government in shifting the Civil Service system from a wartime to a peacetime basis.

The Civil Service Commission will immediately begin to use all its available resources for holding examinations leading to regular Civil Service appointments. Appointments made by the departments and agencies pending the completion of these examinations will be on a purely temporary basis.

Veterans First

When the departments make appointments they will be required to give preference to disabled veterans, second to non-disabled veterans, and third to displaced federal workers. Such appointments must conform to the qualifications standards established by the Civil Service Commission.

War service appointments will be discontinued at once, and persons working for the federal government under war service appointments who fail to pass the regular civil service examinations will be replaced promptly by persons from the top of the regular Civil Service lists.

The Civil Service Commission will establish committees of expert examiners in the departments and agencies to hold examinations in professional, scientific and technical fields for positions which are peculiar to one agency or a small group of agencies.

Made During War

War service appointments were made during the war period to deferring of Civil Service vacancies while millions of veterans were in the armed forces and unable to compete for the regular positions.

Outside of making provisions for the return to the regular Civil Service procedures, the most important decision reflected in the order is that of creating United States Civil Service committees of expert examiners in the departments and agencies.

Detailed information concerning this new presidential order and the opening of examinations for regular positions with the Civil Service may be obtained from Garnet Rhodes, local secretary of the United States Civil Service at her office in the Post Office building.

Charles Hunter of King avenue reported on Open Fox, city forester, on Thursday that he had been feeding four blue birds at his place all winter. His place is in a sheltered spot, somewhat wooded, with a stream running through it, favoring the frequenting of birds and other birdlife.

It is the belief of many folks, says Mr. Fox, that these birds all go south for the winter, but if they can locate suitable sheltered sanctuaries during the cold weather, they will stay, especially if they are fed and protected. The blue birds are seed eaters, and try and locate near a vicinity where they can secure dogwood buds.

Mr. Hunter also told Owen he had seen several young rabbits that were rushing the season during the mid days this winter, and would be hopping around in his vicinity. These rabbits were quite small and could be held in the palm of a hand. They still retained their soft downy fur, not coarse like fully developed rabbits. The cotton tails home was beneath a pile of lumber where their parents had made a nest.

TO MAINTAIN STRONG FORCES IN CHINA AREA

Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer Says He Will Not Retain High Point
Men In Orient

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9. — (INS) — Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer reiterated today that strong American forces will be maintained in the China theater.

The American commander in China had this to say about replacements:

"I will try to maintain American forces in my command at a minimum strength necessary to carry out the mission assigned to me. I will not retain highpoint men here just to accomplish this, but will try to get necessary replacements at the proper time to keep the job going."

Wedemeyer added that he had "exercised more influence" since President Truman made public America's policy in China.

Regarding the Manchurian question, Wedemeyer said he was trying to obtain information through official channels on the strength and status of Jap troops in that area.

He added that it will be about another month before Chinese Nationalist troops are moved into Manchuria and facilities are provided for bringing Jap forces out.

Wedemeyer indicated his headquarters was watching Manchuria and realized it must be prepared to handle an extremely delicate situation. He declared:

"At the present time, we have our hands full with repatriation of Japanese from Central China and moving the new Chinese Nationalist Sixth Army toward Manchuria."

Believes Wagner Logical Candidate

In the opinion of James A. Travers, state committeeman of the Democratic party from Lawrence county, G. Harold Wagner, presently the state auditor, is the logical candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"Mr. Wagner knows state government," said Mr. Travers. "He has served as state treasurer and is now the auditor general. He is a native of Luzerne county but is widely known throughout the state. His record in office is one of achievement and this alone justifies his selection as the Democratic standard bearer."

"In previous state-wide elections he has shown his ability as a vote getter and has usually led the ticket. In my opinion he should be nominated by the Democrats."

Rock And Earth Slide Go Through Warehouse Roof

MONESSEN, Pa., Feb. 9. — (INS) — A huge rock and earth slide crashed through the roof of a furniture warehouse in Monessen today causing an unestimated amount of damage.

Five automobiles parked at a nearby service station were crushed like egg shells.

Police said that houses for several blocks were shaken. The landslide was caused by recent heavy rains and damp weather.

No one was injured.

Jackie Burrows Speaks To Gideons

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bender of 136 Euclid avenue, New Castle, Camp of Gideons and auxiliary were entertained on Friday evening for their regular business meeting.

The devotional period was conducted by President Robert Chappell.

Evangelist Jackie Burrows, associate Gideon, gave a short address. Ed Furness of Ellwood City gave a vocal solo.

Plans were made for a Gideon field day in the Butler churches in March. It was reported that Bibles had been placed in the Lawrence county jail, also in Darlington.

The auxiliary session was in charge of President Mrs. R. Chappell. Bibles have been placed in beauty parlors of the city, it was reported.

In the course of the evening, several instrumental selections were heard from Mr. and Mrs. Neal Macaulay, of the Jackie Burrows evangelistic party.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess, who had as her aide, Mrs. Thomas Baird of Ellwood City.

Meeting closed with Gideon Circle and benediction by Louis Mooney.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Lutz of 928 East Washington street.

George Junior Republic Drive Starts Monday

Snappy Campaign Is Planned To Raise $7,000 Fund In Lawrence County's Share

LEADERS WILL MEET MONDAY EVENING

Representatives of the various service clubs of the county will meet in the Coral Room of The Castleton, Monday evening at 8 o'clock, when they will inaugurate a snappy one week's campaign for $7,000, which represents Lawrence county's quota of the $100,000 building fund sought by George Junior Republic, boys correctional home at Grove City.

General Chairman Ross D. Rosenberger has mapped out plans for the drive, which were announced at a preliminary meeting held in The Castleton two weeks ago, when the quotas were assigned the different sections of the county and were accepted by leaders from these districts.

New Castle citizens will be asked to contribute $4,500; Ellwood City, $1,500; and Wampum Bessemer and New Wilmington, $1,000.

With a cause so meritorious as the George Junior Republic, those who are participating in the campaign, feel that it will not be difficult to reach the goal set for the county, and they will so after the amount needed with enthusiasm.

During the past five years, 16 boys from Lawrence county have been rehabilitated at the home, and are now pursuing honorable and respected vocations, thanks to the help given them at the Republic. There are two boys from the county being aided at the home at the present time, learning how to become trusted citizens after a little straying from the right path.

The $7,000 being sought from the county would be a small sum to pay for turning these two boys alone into respected citizens, to say nothing of the many others who have been helped in the past, or who will be aided in the future.

The goals of the campaign are an increase in evangelism, an increase in Sunday school attendance, and increase in church attendance, and increase in Bible study.

The County Sunday School association is responsible for the plan, the publicity, the records, announcing the winners and makes the awards. The local Sunday schools participating are responsible for the plan and contests. Their Sunday school adopts to secure new members and to encourage those on the roll to regular attendance. Those in the church attendance phase of the campaign, keep a record of those attending Sunday school who remain for the morning worship service.

DON'T PUT MONEY IN POCKET FULL OF HOLES

It's like putting money in a pocket full of holes to apply lime and fertilizer on fields and then let the topsoil wash away. For this reason the wise farmer will include plans for erosion control in his 1946 farm program.

It's true that lime, phosphate, and manure will restore some fertility to eroded land, but unless the erosion is halted this plant food is wasted and the whole cost, including labor, is lost.

Farmers wishing assistance in determining erosion control practices best suited to individual farms and fields should contact the Agricultural Extension Office, No. 206 Post Office Building, New Castle. Where contour strips are to be established incident to spring plowing or planting, these layouts should be staked off ahead of the spring rush season.

Book Review For Brotherhood Week

Mrs. J. J. Melville will review the book, "The Cross Over Africa" at a special "Brotherhood Week" book review in the central Y.W.C.A. Thursday afternoon, February 14, at 2 o'clock.

The foreign mission study book is in keeping with the theme of the brotherhood week observance planned by a group of local agencies and organization for the week of February 11 through 21.

Mrs. J. Glenn Blevins is chairman of the meeting, which is open to members of all missionary societies and to all Y.W.C.A. members.

Approve Bill To Fix Ceilings On Home Building

Preference Will Be Given To War Veterans In New Home Construction

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—(INS)—The House Banking committee Friday approved an emergency housing bill carrying authority for the government to fix ceiling prices on new homes.

The committee previously rejected a proposal that ceiling price powers on existing housing also be fixed. As the bill was approved by the committee, by a 13 to 9 vote, the ceiling price on new homes would be determined by the housing administrator, and would be based on the cost of construction plus a reasonable profit.

Veterans Preference

The committee rejected a proposal by Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex.), that the ceilings be placed at a "flexible" $6,000 maximum.

The committee struck from the bill all references to the use of subsidies to keep housing costs down, but approved a plan to extend federal priorities and allocations powers for housing materials. The measure also contains veterans preferences in the purchase of new houses.

Rep. Brent Spence (D-Ky.), committee chairman, announced that the House group would begin hearings on extension of price control legislation on Monday, with OPA Administrator Chester Bowles as the first witness.

Wyatt Expediter
The housing measure created the Office of Housing Administrator for a one-year term. It is assumed the administrator will be Wilson W. Wyatt, who already has been named by President Truman as housing expediter.

As approved by the committee, the ceiling price powers on new homes were vested in the housing administrator with the following consideration:

1. Actual cost of construction of the house provided it is not in excess of maximum legal prices for materials and services.
2. Fair market on the land.
3. A margin of profit reflecting the generally prevailing margin of profit upon comparable units during the calendar year 1941.
